In Democratic runoff

Bond issue, key nominations trigger record absentee vote

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Henry Otis, Circuit court clerk reported heavy balloting by absentee voters through the noon Saturday deadline in Tuesday's Democratic Primary runoff election.

"In my memory, we have the most absentee ballots ever cast in an election," Otis commented. Several important positions are to be filled Tuesday in Hancock County in addition to a voter decision on a school

seeks the governor's nomination in a run-off with William F. Winter. William A. (Bill) Allain and W. O. (Chet) Dillard are challenging each other for the attorney general nomination from Democratic voters.

In the Southern District for Public Service Commissioner, Henry Bucklew and Lynn Havens vie in the run-off. Indications from many election watchers are that even more will cast their ballots in the run-off election than in the first primary. Hancock County polls open at 7 a.m. and close at 6 p.m. Tuesday.

A list of the election managers appears on page 5-B of this issue.

Peterson, Dobson speak on issues

BY LESLIE WILLIAMS
The two candidates seeking the Hancock County Democratic Party's nomination for sheriff, current Chief Deputy Ronnie Peterson and District Four Judge Joe Dobson, have expressed themselves on several issues pertinent to their campaigns. The two are opponents for the nomination in Tuesday's Democratic Primary runoff election here. Peterson led a five-man field seeking the sheriff's nomination in the first primary in which he received 3,476 votes, some 1,484 more than Dobson's 1,922 votes. However, 3,419 votes were shared among the three other candidates, votes Peterson and Dobson are each trying to secure for themselves in the runoff. Mr. Peterson, do you feel the numerous drug arrests you made as a narcotics agent will cause you to lose many votes? Peterson: "No, because I feel I was Chancery Clerk J. D. (Big John) Rutherford is seeking his third term with school administrator Mike Necaise as his run-off opponent. The Hancock County superintendent of education's race has incumbent Terrell (Terry) Randolph facing North Bay Elementary Principal Billy D. Sills.

Residents of the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District do not vote for the county's superintendent of education nor for the bond issue.

Construction of a new elementary school at Hancock North Central and a high school in the southern end of the county is proposed under the bond issue.

Incumbent Oscar Peterson is challenged by Roger Dale Ladner for supervisor of District Three. Peterson who seeks his third term led Ladner 747-511 in the first primary against four additional opponents.

Two Justice Court positions will be settled Tuesday with Bruce J. Necaise facing G. R. (Jerry) Sousseneau in District Four where sheriff candidate Joseph Dobson is the incumbent.

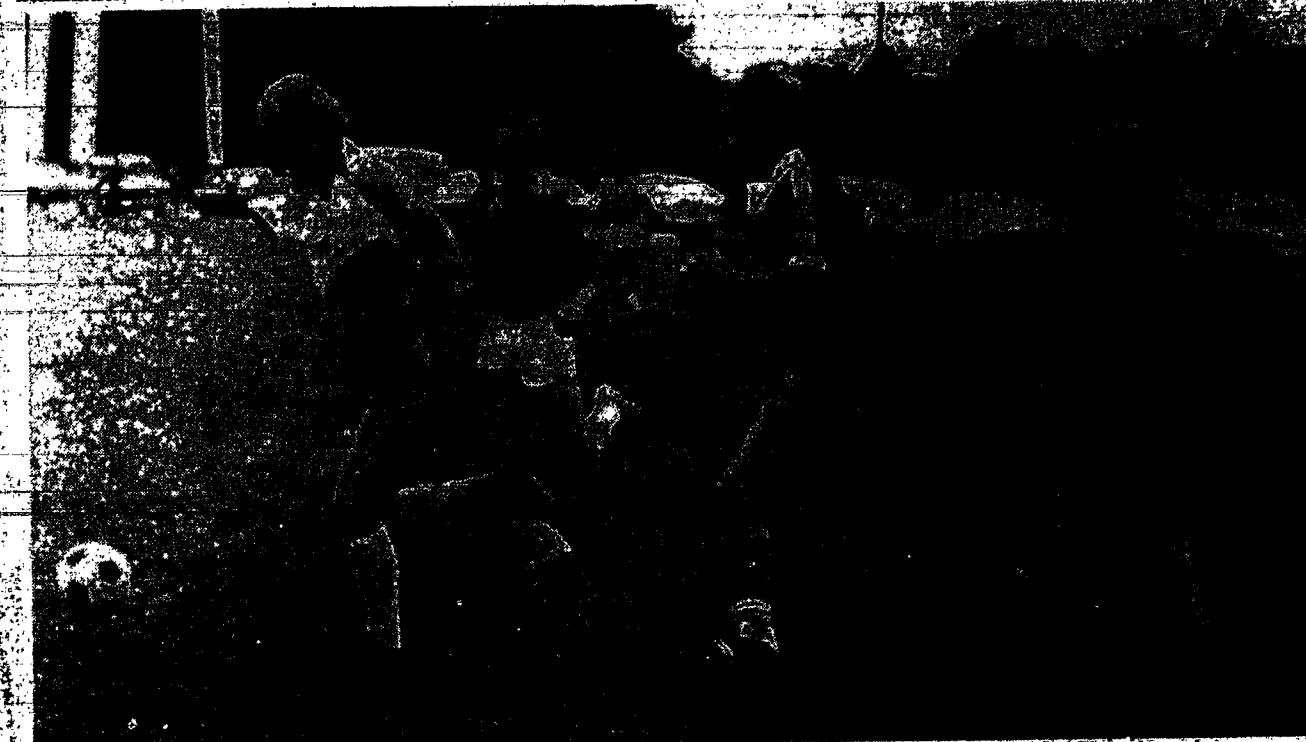

Bay attorney John C. Carver, 514 Jackson Road, former Bay St. Louis City Commissioner, are in the run-off for District Five judge.

Incumbent William Frisbie didn't seek re-election.

The only constable's office to be settled is in district four where incumbent A. C. Carver is vying with Gerald A. Tomasich.

The general election will be held on Tuesday, November 6, and several positions will be contested by Republican and independent candidates.

Advisors, Chamber back county school bond issue

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
Hancock County School Board advisory committee members have begun a "door to door" effort asking electors to vote for the county school system's proposed $3.7 million capital improvements bond issue Tuesday. The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce has openly rallied in support of the bond issue by publishing advertisements urging voters to vote for the bond issue proposal. The bond proposal, with support from 60 percent of electors in the district who vote on the question, will finance construction of a new junior senior high school south of I-10 at a cost of $2,035,475 and a new elementary school near Hancock North Central at a cost of $1,675,364.

Renovations at HNC are also included in the overall building program of the school system in addition to those improvements to be financed by the bond issue.

The advisory committee, appointed by the county school board, has aided the board in preparing a plan which will save Hancock North Central Attendance Center's accreditation.

The bond issue proposal and the renovations at HNC are that group's plan to save accreditation.

"I've gone door to door trying to encourage voters to support the bond issue," said committee member Gail Pressman, a Hancock County real estate broker.

"I'm personally interested in the accreditation problems caused by overcrowding—we obviously need more facilities in the school district," she said. "I'm not speaking from a realtor's standpoint, I have two children in the system and I'm interested in public education," the committee member stated.

"Committee member James Rester said he is supporting the bond issue 'by word of mouth,' going from individual to individual.

Pat Peterson, another committee member said, "I have organized a committee of eight persons to help encourage people to go out and vote."

Peterson added the problem of overcrowding is getting greater and greater all the time with more people locating in the county every day.

Superintendent Terrell Randolph says the taxes of an average resident in the county school district would increase approximately $5.10 to $10.00 per year if the bond issue passes.

According to Randolph, the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District received approximately $941,327 in local school taxes for the 1978-1979 fiscal year.

The county school system during the same fiscal year received about $554,250 from local taxes, a difference of $387,077, Randolph stated.

Prisoners threaten hunger strike, issue 15 'demands'

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Seven prisoners in the Hancock County Jail Saturday voiced a list of 15 demands through a letter to the editor which appears on the Editorial Page (4A) of today's Sea Coast Echo.

Concerning those demands, Sheriff Sylvan Ladner's first comments were, "First I would like for you to publish the amount of time, to which these men have been sentenced."

The sheriff began citing convictions and sentences of each person who signed the letter and its demands: "Daryle R. Smith, five years for burglary; Glenn E. McBurlie, three years for burglary and other charges; Gerald Ford, six years for crimes in Hancock County; Harrison Courtes, three years for burglary; Willie L. Beale, life sentence for burglary; Eddie L. Beale, life sentence for burglary; and other charges."

That's all they have to say, is that? Oh yes, they also demand that for parole, probation, and other things, they be given a hearing by the Police Department in Atlantic.

If I recall correctly, that's what the men are being held in jail for, the sheriff said.

The prisoners report that if their demands are not met they will continue to strike and refuse to work the cells and cooperate with the prison department.

The sheriff threatened to hold the men in the State Penitentiary if they do not accept the demands.

they broke them mostly themselves. "A federal judge has ruled—not another inmate may be put in Parchman unless there is 60 square feet per prisoner. The state has to build new prison facilities as jails all over are over crowded with prisoners waiting to go to Parchman," the sheriff explained.

"Who is going to pay for the cigarettes? If they stayed out of jail they wouldn't have to worry about not having cigarettes," Ladner continued.

"We had TV sets at one time in the jail, let me tell you what the prisoners did. They took a wire from a set and skinned it, attached it to an open socket which the bulb was taken from and hooked up the other end of the wire to a metal door, so when I or one of my deputies opened the door we would have been electrocuted."

"We let them have their mail, although we check certain pieces to make sure they are not contraband, weapons, drugs, and other contraband. We do check some of the mail for our security."

"Where are we going to let them go? They are not going to be released until they are sentenced to the State Penitentiary."

"Anytime any person wants to work the cells, they will be given a hearing by the Police Department in Atlantic."

"If I recall correctly, that's what the men are being held in jail for, the sheriff said."

hold 20 inmates, "Right now we have a total of seven being held for the state prison of which six are complaining about conditions and service here," he noted.

"There isn't any law that says anyone in jail has to be provided all the luxuries of life," the sheriff added.

Ladner has for some time been trying to find funds for construction of a new jail for Hancock County.

"knock down the entire educational system in the county" and the matter should be further discussed with the administrative officers of the school system.

Ladner then discussed teacher accountability, a related matter in the educational system which is receiving statewide attention.

"Now that we have made children accountable for their requirements, what about making the same apply for teachers," Ladner asked the board.

"There is still no way to make teachers accountable for their work from year-to-year on an individual basis," he added.

Randolph said the State Department of Education is formulating an accountability system for teachers, and added a set of competency requirements are also being considered.

"As soon as the state comes out with its competency requirements, we will formulate our own for our individual teachers," Randolph said.

Ladner said the competency tests for teachers should be administered each year, rather than waiting a number of years between the exams.

He also said teachers should not be allowed to write their own competency exams, as Randolph suggested.

Randolph said the tests will be drafted with input from teachers, the school board, the administration, and parents.

The board took no action on the matter.

Also at Saturday's meeting, Randolph suggested the board check with other schools on the Coast and possibly alter the 1980-1981 school calendar to have school open following Labor Day because of the intense heat in the non-air conditioned classrooms at the Hancock North Central Attendance Center.

"We forget how hot it is this time of year. I was in a classroom earlier this week and students were just burning up," the superintendent said.

Also at the meeting, the board approved payment of $1,112 to the Mississippi Forestry Commission for maintenance and painting boundary lines on 16th Section Land owned by the school district.

Ladner explained the maintenance included planting new trees, keeping fire lanes clear, and prohibiting citizens from chopping down trees on the school-owned property.

On a motion by Johnny Banks, seconded by Louie Ladner, the board approved the payment.

The board also approved a bid Sunday for electrical work at Gulfview Elementary School and a new school pick-up truck.

Only one bid for the electrical job from Lancaster Electric Company of Gulfport was received, that bid being for $1,603.

A motion by Oris Ladner to accept the bid was seconded by Louie Ladner and unanimously approved.

The board approved a low bid of $4,652 for a GMC 6-cylinder pick-up truck from Schuffert Pontiac-Buick-GMC in Bay St. Louis.

Other bids received were from Turan-Lane Chevrolet of Bay St. Louis, $5,000; and Charlie Henderson Ford, also in Bay St. Louis, $4,753.

An $850 change order to renovation of Gulfview Elementary for construction of an additional hallway was also approved Saturday.

Woodrow Ladner explained restrooms outside the building are connected by a covered walkway, which leaks due to deterioration when it rains.

Architect John Mykolyk said the contractor for the renovations quoted a firm $850 would build a hallway to the restrooms.

On a motion by Oris Ladner, seconded by Banks, the change order was approved.

The board recessed until 6 p.m. Sept. 4.

Hancock Forester warns of unauthorized cutting

Homeowners looking for a place to cut firewood for use this coming fall and winter are cautioned by the State Forestry Commission against removing any wood from Mississippi's state-owned timberlands without official approval of the agency administering those lands.

Hancock Forester Rand Rudrich says that by law no trees can be cut or removed from School Sections or other such lands without first being designated or individually marked for removal by the administering agency or its agent.

Rudrich emphasized that, in the case of School Section forest land, State law requires that trees must be marked or otherwise designated for sale by the Mississippi Forestry Commission. Advanced permission must likewise be secured to cut or remove firewood from federally owned lands such as the National Forests, according to a U.S. Forest Service official. No cutting is allowed at all on the Natchez Trace Parkway. "Persons who enter upon land they don't own to cut stove or fireplace wood without first getting permission may be violating any one of several state or federal trespass or timber theft laws," Rudrich declared.

The local Forester expressed an opinion that the vast majority of Mississippians strongly respect private property rights and noted that he didn't detect any current trend away from that attitude. "However," he said "as more and more people buy wood-burning stoves and the demand for firewood drives prices upward we anticipate that more folks are going to be out trying to gather up their own wood and eventually this could become a problem."

Winter promises expanded market force

Democratic gubernatorial candidate William Winter, campaigning throughout Mississippi this week, pledged to reorganize the state marketing council and make that organization a more effective force for marketing the agricultural goods produced in Mississippi. Speaking to a group of farmers in Edwards, Winter said, "I will work with the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and the various agricultural organizations in this state to expand the markets for Mississippi products. I will also do whatever is necessary to improve the price our farmers receive for their crops."

Today Mississippi farmers are squeezed between high production costs on the one hand and uncertain prices on the other," Winter commented. "We need innovative ideas to resolve this vexing problem."

"The construction of processing plants for raw agricultural products will be a priority during my administration," said Winter. "The Mississippi economy suffers a tremendous loss when raw products are sent out of state. I will move aggressively to establish agricultural processing plants during my administration."

Winter, who grew up on a farm in rural Grenada County, blasted the political cronism that has allowed so many problems in the state to go unresolved for so long.

"The problems of the farmers, like the problems faced by others in this state, will go unresolved until we have tough, hard-nosed leadership in the governor's office that is unafraid to chart new courses," Winter said.

"I will provide exactly that kind of leadership," Winter emphasized that the future of Mississippi hinges on the increasing effectiveness and professionalism of state agencies. "We must rescue state agencies from those political hacks and cronies who have kept state agencies from performing their tasks."

In reshaping agencies of state government such as the Marketing Council, Winter stressed that he will protect the great majority of state employees who conscientiously pursue their jobs.

"But I will not hesitate to root out those who play politics with state government and hinder the many, many good works in our state agencies from performing their duties."

State Medical Association initiates jail health care

HEALTH CARE IN JAILS. Gerald P. Gable, MD, president of the Mississippi State Medical Association, said a program to upgrade the health care facilities of jails in the state is to be initiated by the association.

The program will work to bring Mississippi jails up to the standards of medical care established by the American Medical Association.

The AMA initiated a program of jail health care in 1978 after a survey conducted jointly with the American Bar Association disclosed that most U.S. jails had either inadequate or non-existent health care facilities.

The AMA Jail Program is funded by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) of the U.S. Justice Department.

The standards of medical care in jails were established by a committee composed of physicians, dentists, ex-inmates, correction officers, clergymen and others.

Today, after three years of research and revision, some 60 jails in 15 states have already been accredited by the AMA as meeting an appropriate level of health care.

As one of the seven new states to join in the AMA program, the Mississippi State Medical Association will provide technical assistance to sheriffs to upgrade their health care facilities to AMA requirements and to coordinate the efforts of physicians who have volunteered their time.

Participating facilities will be selected during September.

Give our children a first class education!

Tuesday when Hancock Countians go to the polls to vote on state and local candidates, those living in the County School District will have an opportunity to help their youth. So the people living in the county school district really have more reason for voting Tuesday than anyone else when you consider the welfare of their children is at stake.

The construction of a new elementary school at Hancock North Central and a high school in the southern end of the County is needed not only to offer our children the best in education, but to save accreditation of the system's schools.

Our children should not have to attend school in overcrowded classrooms, they should be offered the same opportunity as children all over the United States.

Why should our children be second class students when they can be first class students. We realize many of you have voted for the bond issues which were previously proposed, and we want to congratulate you for doing so.

How many of you vote Tuesday may have a lot to do with the outcome of the bond issues. Remember, the first time the proposal lost by only one vote or very few votes in the recount, and advertising procedures were brought out as being wrong.

On the two previous bond issues, more than half of the electors who voted were for our children, but passage needs 60 percent in favor.

This time a new elementary school is being offered for students at Hancock North Central, so not everything will be going just for South Hancock.

We know a lot of politics have been played in the two previous bond issue elections. And who suffers? Our Children!

Hancock North Central right now is on probation. Do you want your children attending a school not accredited (to reach adulthood ashamed of the education you helped them receive)?

It is up to you parents, you are responsible in helping educate your children. If the teachers do not have the proper facilities, don't blame them for your children getting a second class education, especially when you want them to have a first class education.

Vote for the bond issue Tuesday, vote for first class education for YOUR children. They will thank YOU in years to come.

Opinion

Your vote is needed!

Tuesday, August 28 is date of the run-off election for Democratic nominees, and we wonder just how many will vote in Hancock County.

And another very important question up for votes is the Hancock County school bond issue proposal.

Very important positions of leadership in our county will be filled Tuesday - the office of sheriff, chancery clerk, supervisor, several Justice Court judges, a constable's position on the local scene and governor and other state offices state-wide.

We realize, or course, nominees elected Tuesday will have Republican and Independent opposition in the General Election in November.

We would very much like to urge you to get out and vote Tuesday.

Call your neighbors, relatives and friends, let the state know that Hancock County takes pride in the right to vote.

The importance of every vote counting was really brought to light in the recent state highway commissioner's race.

A total of more than a quarter-million votes was cast in the race and at last county, we saw only five votes separating the two candidates.

We think it is about time for the majority to elect our leaders, and the only way for the majority to elect them is through an impressive turnout of qualified electors on election day.

Vote Tuesday, choose the candidates of your choice.

"PASS ME SOME DRUGS OR A KNIFE BLADE" This window in a Hancock County jail cell for juvenile offenders is on ground level facing Court Street in Bay St. Louis. Sheriff Sylvan Ladner's index finger points to the screen outside the window bars. "Anyone can pass a juvenile drugs, a knife blade or pliers through this opening," Ladner complains. The short term solution to the problem is to install a special screen outside the bars with smaller openings, because even if the hole were not there, a hacksaw blade could easily be slipped through regular screen openings, the sheriff says. Construction of a fence around the jail that would prevent public access to the outside of this window is the long term solution, he notes. "Funds for the necessary construction should come from the Youth Court," the sheriff insists. "They are responsible for juveniles."

Bits 'n pieces

The sale of heating oil and kerosene to Iran has everyone talking about President Carter. The words most heard do not favor the deal at all.

We will be thinking about the deal as being 'a good will gesture' every time we stop at our local service station.

The Senior National Power Lift at St. Stanislaus last weekend brought a big boost for our tourist economy. We understand all of the local motels were booked solid.

Of course the motels were not the only places to benefit directly. Restaurants got a good share of business as well as others.

In the long run it will help the community as a whole. We need more things of this nature to bring people to our County.

It is a shame, but we received word from a very reliable source that one motel really stuck it to some visitors with room rates after quoting one price by telephone when reservations were made, and charged much higher rates.

Now we say only one motel, that is all that has been reported to us, but it sure gives the whole community a bad name when a supposedly legitimate business practices unfair pricing.

The other motel owners in Hancock County may want to seek this owner out, and lay a few words on him, as he affects them directly more than anyone else.

It is good to see the Bay St. Louis Jaycees dedicate their new home on St. John Street. A 20th anniversary celebration was also held by the group in Bay St. Louis.

Many fine young men have been members of that organization in Bay St. Louis.

We are happy to see such enthusiasm among the young men of the community, and wish them well in their endeavors of helping better the Bay. They have been honored by the State for being the only club to triple their membership in one year, which is a great honor.

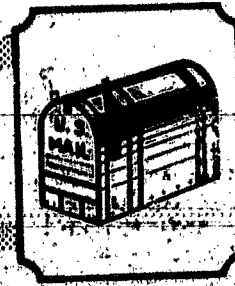

At this time we have to salute the men and women of Hancock County who rise early and then return in mid-afternoon at out school intersections.

Their job is a very important one and as drivers we should respect the directions they give in school zones.

Remember this, their main concern is the safety of our children, and if you have any ideas about them having a soft job, try to take their place for one week.

Picking up trash is one thing, putting it down another

Editor
Sea Coast Echo

Dear Sir:

I certainly wish the mayor and councilmen were as careful of observing ordinances concerning dump-ping trash, as they are of picking it up. If they were really concerned about neatness for the citizens, they'd enforce both, particularly since they're the ones being so messy.

Why do we have to tolerate a dump in the city limit?

Allain's campaign for attorney general is consumer oriented

Bill Allain, democratic candidate for attorney general, this week stepped up his consumer-oriented campaign for the state's top legal office.

"Many of the problems the attorney general's office has been involved in are behind us," Allain said. "We must now change with the times and move aggressively into a new area of concentrating on consumer problems as well as being the lawyer for state and local governments."

Allain, who received 48 percent of the voted cast in the first primary election, pledged to strengthen the consumer protection and anti-trust divisions of the office.

He said he will ask the Legislature to "beef up" consumer protection laws which are not now adequate to protect the people from fraudulent investment schemes and certain rip-off artists.

"We need to strengthen the consumer protection division and put more teeth into the laws," he said, adding that, since its inception in 1974, the office has recovered more than $750,000 for Mississippians.

The Natchez native repeated his call for establishment of branch attorney general offices in North and South Mississippi "so the people won't have to drive all the way to Jackson to get help if they have been ripped-off."

Allain, who served 12 years as assistant and first assistant to two attorneys general, said he would also strengthen the anti-trust division of the office.

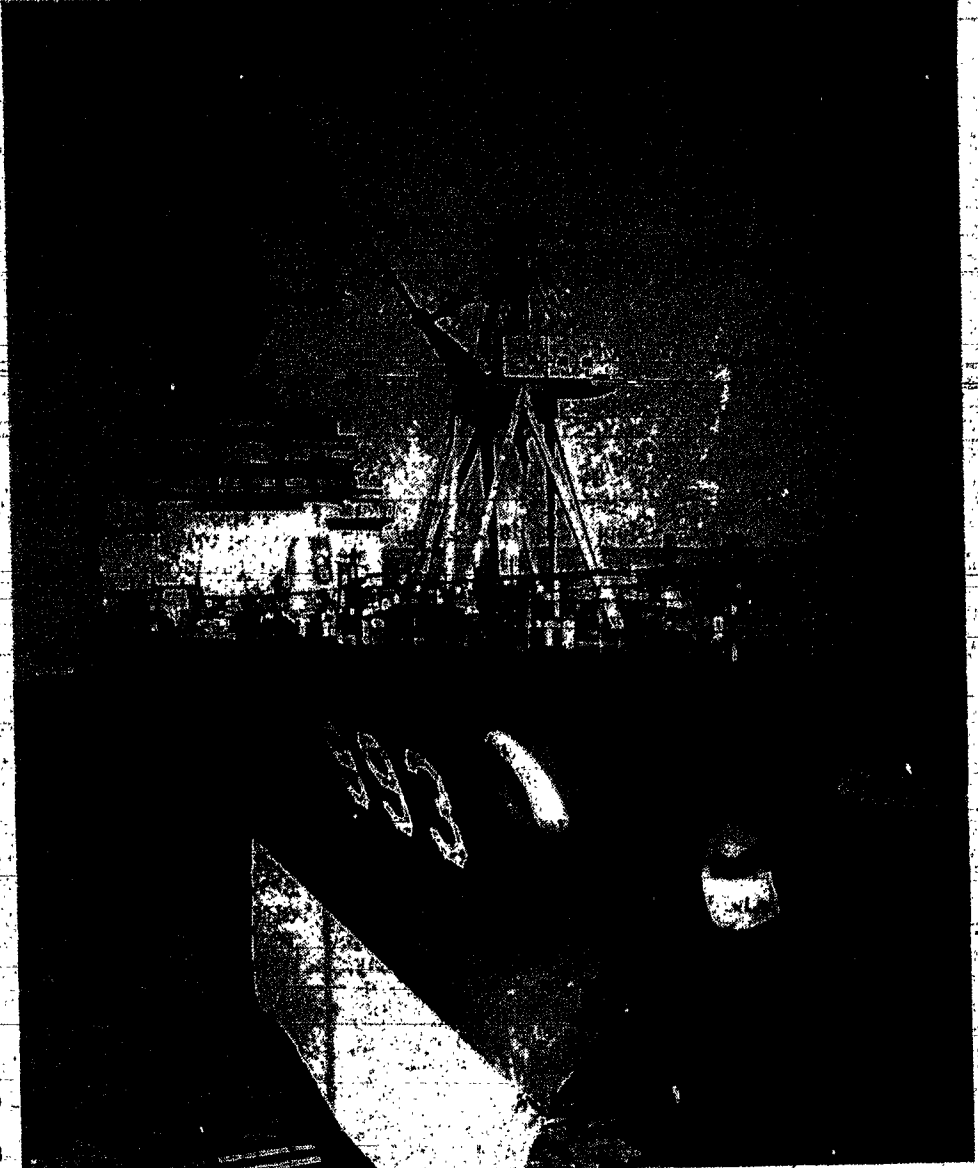

He said this division, established only recently, has recovered over $2 million for cities, hospitals, schools and other governmental bodies from companies alleged to have been involved in price-fixing and other schemes.

He said he will work closely with Mississippi's congressional delegation to see that the division continues to receive necessary federal funds.

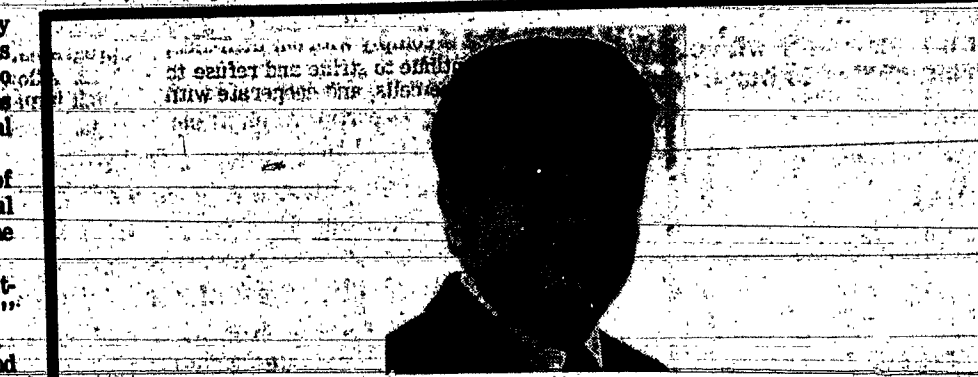

"When the people of Mississippi face tough legal battles, they can count on me always to be their lawyer. Ours will be a 'people's' attorney general's office," Allain said.

Allain was Assistant and first assistant attorney general from 1962 to 1975. a private attorney, he has served as special counsel to numerous cities, counties, school boards and other government agencies helping with various legal matters.

FINAL TOUCH—Workers at Ingalls Shipbuilding division of Litton Industries in Pascagoula provide the final touch to the hull of the guided missile destroyer (DDG-992) in preparation for the ship's recent launching. Originally contracted to be built for the government of Iran, Congress and President Carter recently authorized U.S. Navy purchase of Kidd and three sister-ships being built by Ingalls. The Kidd, which will be christened in ceremonies Sept. 15, is named for Rear Admiral Isaac C. Kidd who was killed aboard the battleship Arizona at Pearl Harbor. The three other ships, also named for Navy flag officers who perished on the bridge of their fighting ship during World War II are: Callaghan (DDG-994) for Rear Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan lost aboard the cruiser San Francisco during the naval battle of Guadalcanal; Scott (DDG-995); for Rear Admiral Norman Scott who died aboard the cruiser Atlanta during the same naval battle; and Chandler (DDG-996), for Rear Admiral T. E. Chandler, killed by a kamikaze plane on the cruiser Louisville off the coast of the Philippines.

IT'S TIME FOR A CHANGE

Hancock County has a bright future. We have many new industries; with prospects for more. We have one of the most rapidly growing gas fields in the South. The NASA installation is playing a major role in our country's technology, and is rapidly becoming a national center for the navy, and for ammunition manufacturing.

To keep up with this progress, our tax dollars must be spent wisely; priorities must be set. Education is most important for our future. So are good roads, efficient county, maintenance, and capable engineering. The Port and Harbor Commission plays an active role in our community. It is the duty of the board of supervisors to see that the commission works at its best. Recreation is an important part of a good county. Tax dollars must be well spent on every thing from summer baseball programs to activities of our senior citizens. Projects such as McCloud Park, adequate fishing piers and improved boat ramps all contribute to a better way of life. Let's keep Hancock County's future bright.

RUMORS!!!

It's time that the voters of Hancock County know the facts; it's time to once and for all lay the rumors and lies surrounding my candidacy to rest. Four years ago I ignored the mistruths that were spread about me, and throughout my campaign this summer I have ignored the rumors. But in a last minute effort to defeat me, many false statements have been made about Billy Sills. I want the voters of Hancock County to know the facts about my candidacy for County Superintendent of Education.

RUMOR: If Billy Sills is elected, he will fire the principal at Hancock North Central High School.

FACT: Billy Sills has never made any comment about dismissing any school officials at Hancock North Central. Billy Sills has said that anyone not working for the best interests of the students of our schools will have to go.

RUMOR: If Billy Sills is elected, he will consolidate the city and county school system in Hancock County.

FACT: Billy Sills knows that the County Superintendent has no authority to make such a move; such action would have to come from the state legislatures or the voters of Hancock County.

RUMOR: Implications have been made that money was illegally appropriated by Billy Sills while he was principal at North Bay Elementary School.

FACT: Principals do not pay the school bills; the bills are paid through the district office. The rumor above is designed to win votes for my opponents.

RUMOR: Billy Sills worked against the bond issue to improve the county schools.

FACT: My opponent has repeatedly used the bond issue as a political tool. I am not against the bond issue; I am against foolishly spending the taxpayers' money. I am for new facilities wherever they best serve the children of this community.

These are but a few of the rumors presently being circulated about my campaign. Please seek the truth, as my opposition, in desperation, has circulated many rumors on the eve of this election. If I have offended anyone by replying to these statements, then I apologize, but after four years of listening to such garbage, I had to reply.

Hospital Association moves to remedy nurse shortage

A Mississippi Hospital Association task force on nursing has recommended greater emphasis on appeals to high school students to consider a career in hospital nursing.

Charles W. Shepherd of Quitman, chairman of the task force, says some 1,000 openings for nurses exist today in hospitals throughout the state. "Our task force," said Shepherd, "would like to see more 'Career Days' in high schools related to hospital nursing, including an up-to-date slide presentation." Council moves to correct water system deficiencies

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Bay St. Louis Council Thursday accepted a low bid from Hartco Service, Inc. to repair the city water system's Leonard-Street well.

Dr. Michael Smith, president of Advanced Developments Incorporated, (ADI), city engineering consultants, recommended acceptance of Hartco's bid of $16,897.

That bid includes a chlorination system for the well and construction of three concrete block buildings to house the chlorine cylinders at the Leonard Street facility and two other city wells.

Mayor Larry Bennett was authorized to sign a contract with Hartco Services. The Leonard Street Well pressure has been regulated manually and has been subject to over pressurize the system, according to Smith.

The State Board of Health has been delaying approval of the 1979 Small Cities Project for Bay St. Louis until the chlorination system of the Leonard Street well is operational and tied permanently into the system.

Another delay to approval of the 1978 Small Cities System has been repair of a flow meter at the city sewage oxidation pond. Those repairs were completed early last week.

In addition to the chlorination system and block house at the Leonard Street well, storage houses will be constructed at the Easterbrook and St. Charles Street Wells. An electrical system will tie in the wells and water tanks to control the water pressure.

Dr. Smith reported earlier this month well-site structures to house machinery and chemicals do not conform to State Board of Health standards.

Interior wooden doors instead of steel, and a plastic type of materials for the walls instead of concrete blocks were used on the buildings which house chlorine cylinders.

Lucien Kidd, former Bay St. Louis city commissioner and member of the previous administration which was in office when the inferior structures were built, reported last weekend reason for the downgraded construction was a lack of funds.

The State Board of Health approved the construction, according to Kidd.

Laine Central Company of Jackson was the other bidder last week on the water system improvements, offering to complete the job for $24,063.

Smith said he was informed by Health Department personnel that as soon as the information is received by their department that the bids are let, approval will be issued on the 1978 Small Cities project.

The 1978 Small Cities Project involves extending the water and sewer facilities to the 500 blocks of Washington, Sycamore and Keller Streets.

Also Thursday, councilmen discussed a further delay in the widening of Beach Boulevard from Main Street to deMontluzin by moving a sidewalk back to help ease traffic and parking problem.

Consulting engineers Broadway and Seal, Inc., Picayune, withdrew its plans for widening Beach Boulevard when Councilman Fred Wagner suggested a more complete plan.

Donn Murray, representing Broadway and Seal, said he understood "this was to be a simple job, using city crews for labor in conjunction with county assistance."

However, Wagner insisted on more details in the plan. "I have to know these things," he said, "maybe others don't, but I do." Wagner is an architect.

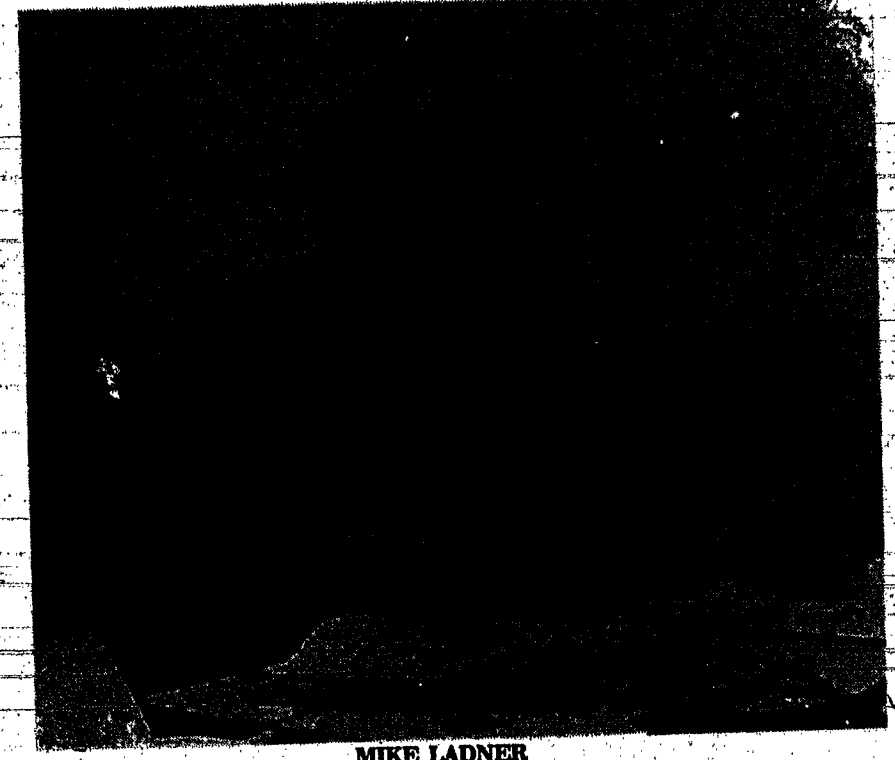

Murray said he was under the impression there would be no bids on the project and he did not know the proposal must include detailed drawings. He said he "thought the plans were good enough."

Although the plans submitted were drawn to scale, they did not show new and existing rights of way.

Murray said his firm's proposal involved minimal costs to get the congestion problem worked out for the city. He said further detail would require "quite a bit more work, it will take more surveying, additional drawing and additional easements would also be required."

Though the proposal was withdrawn, it was taken under advisement by the council as a matter of record.

Murray also submitted a preliminary plan to regrade existing ditches from the Old Spanish Trail to the beach. This proposal was also taken under advisement.

MIKE LADNER

Hancock service officer assists 2,360 veterans

By EDGAR PEREZ

A 20-year Air Force veteran who specialized in personnel administration while in the service is the new Hancock County veterans service officer.

Mike Ladner, native and resident of Kiln, was appointed to the post by the county's board of supervisors on the recommendation of veterans service organizations here.

Ladner held the rank of master sergeant and was stationed at Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi when he was discharged in 1971.

He took over the county veteran service post earlier this summer after John Wilkinson, who had held the position for some four years, resigned to accept an assignment with Rocketdyne at NSIT.

In addition to his duties with the Air Force through which he served extensively in veterans services, Ladner has also served as chief of staff in the southern area of Mississippi for the state office, Veterans of Foreign Wars, is a past state staff judge advocate for VFW, and a past VFW district commander, 1971-1972.

He is also a member of the Bay St. Louis American Legion Post No. 139, a graduate of Old Kiln High School and a former student at University of Maryland.

"I feel John (Wilkinson) did an outstanding job in this position," Ladner stated, "and I hope to keep the level of service to Hancock County veterans through this office as high as he did."

"I will do everything in my power to see that any Hancock County veteran gets every assistance possible in his dealings with the Veterans Administration or any other area in which I can help," Ladner promised.

The county veterans service officer is paid fully out of county funds and is not an officer, employee nor paid by the VA, Ladner explained.

"But we do handle 76 Veterans Administration forms through this office," he continued.

"Educational benefits, home loans, pensions, survivor and dependent benefits, hospitalization and medical care are some of the areas in which this office can be of assistance to veterans here," Ladner said in outlining the functions of his office.

"We have 2,360 veterans in Hancock County as of the end of VA's 1978 fiscal year who received some $1,854,585 in benefits during that period," Ladner noted.

Those figures in Hancock County compare with a total of 244,000 veterans who received some $252,960,682 in benefits during the year in all of Mississippi, according to a VA report released by Ladner.

mills in tax money and the county system receives 26 mills, Randolph added.

"However, the Bay system's millage is based on 30 percent of the its total assessment, and the county system's millage is based on 15 percent of its total assessment," he continued.

The superintendent anticipates the $3.7 million loan will be paid in full by the county school district in 12 to 15 years.

He noted the average yearly increase of $5 to $10 would decrease each year as the amount of the indebtedness decreased.

Victim's mother sues for almost $1 million

By RICH ADAMS

The mother of shooting victim Curtis E. (Chopper) Holman Jr. is suing the key suspect in that death for $900,000 in actual and punitive damages "for the loss of her only child."

Mrs. Holman asks the court to assess $400,000 in actual damages and $500,000 in punitive damages against Edgar Pete Moran, 45, of Catahoula community in northwest Hancock County who is charged with murder in connection with the death of Holman, a Coast Electric employee.

Holman's body was discovered by fellow workers in the Catahoula Community, sprawled on the floor-board of his company-owned truck.

A gunshot wound to the head was ruled cause of death, according to Hancock County Coroner Carl Banderet.

Shortly after the body was discovered, Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan J. Ladner Jr. and Chief Deputy Ronnie Peterson apprehended Moran at his home in Catahoula.

When asked if he committed the crime, Moran reportedly told Peterson, "Yes, I did it."

The chief deputy said Moran gave him a .25 caliber automatic pistol, the weapon believed to have been used in the shooting.

Moran's attorney, former district attorney Boyce Holloman of Gulfport, called the death "an unfortunate incident, but justifiable."

The incident reportedly stems from an ongoing domestic feud between Moran and Holman, allegedly ending in a heated argument and the shooting Aug. 14, Ladner said.

In her suit filed Monday in Hancock County Circuit Court, Mrs. Holman charges that "...on August 14, 1979, the Defendant (Moran) did intentionally, maliciously and wantonly shoot and kill Curtis Holman, Jr. without justification and not in self defense."

The petition prays further, "That for your Plaintiff's loss of her only child and for the loss of his love, consortium, society, affection, his financial support and for the mental anguish she has experienced for this brutal killing, your Plaintiff sues the Defendant for $400,000 actual damages and for the intentions and wanton act of Defendant in taking her son's life, she sues for $500,000 punitive damages."

Mrs. Holman is represented in her case against Moran by Gulfport attorney Donald F. Rose.

Moran was released from Harrison County Jail Wednesday after he waived a preliminary hearing and District One Justice Court Judge Lee Klein set bail at $50,000.

Beat Four Justice Court Judge Joseph Dobson was originally slated to preside before the defendant waived the preliminary hearing in the case, but refused because he said he is "a friend of both families."

fair to all persons I arrested. I was hired to do a job and I did it to the best of my ability and I believe the up-standing citizens of this area respect me for doing my job well."

Will you allow the jail book, which lists people who have been arrested, booked and those housed in the County Jail to be available to the public?

Peterson: "Yes, I will. I don't believe I have a choice, the book is considered a public record."

Dobson: "Yes."

What causes crime in Hancock County?

Peterson: "The county's population is increasing, industry and businesses are locating here, crime is increasing proportionately. However, I feel the people of our county are most fortunate. The county is in excellent shape as far as crime is concerned. We are able to control serious crime."

Dobson: "Being surrounded by the metropolitan areas of Mobile, Ala. and New Orleans causes crime here. Lack of adequate patrolling also contributes to the problem."

What is the solution to preventing crime here?

Peterson: "Better patrolling, keeping patrol cars on the road as often as possible is one solution. Citizen cooperation and participation in crime prevention efforts is the second solution. People have to look-out for each other. I will recommend the hiring of two or three more deputies as the third solution when I am elected."

Dobson: "Providing better law enforcement. Hiring qualified deputies, and more active patrolling should prevent crime here."

Do you have any plans for acquiring a new sheriff's office and jail?

Peterson: "Yes I do. This is an important factor. The jail is outdated, inadequate and the sheriff's office is too small and inadequate. There is not enough office and storage space."

Dobson: "I will keep abreast of federal funds available and when and if available I plan to do everything within my power to secure a new jail."

Do you feel you will be able to develop a positive working relationship with the Hancock County Board of Supervisors?

Peterson: "I am going to be my own man. I feel I can work in harmony with the supervisors."

Dobson: "I will have an excellent working relationship with the supervisors. I respect supervisors for being elected officials. I will work with them in any way for the prevention of crime and for the people of Hancock County to have a safe place to live."

Who has primarily supported your campaign financially?

Peterson: "I have primarily supported it myself. I have received a few donations from friends and family."

Dobson: "Joseph Joe Dobson, has primarily supported my campaign."

Why do you feel you can do a good job as sheriff?

Peterson: "I feel I'm the best qualified man in the race. I have been working for the sheriff's office for eight years. I've been there, I know the problems the county has. I have a tremendous amount of experience in presiding cases to the grand jury and testifying in court. Criminals are getting smarter all the time and I have kept abreast of the latest law enforcement methods by attending various enforcement schools and seminars."

Dobson: "Because I have been in law enforcement. I also have a background in the judicial system. I know law, as well as how to execute it. The three-day seminars, approximately 10 or more, I have attended give me broader knowledge of the law, and how to execute it wisely."

Describe your background, including place of birth family and educational experience?

Peterson: "I was born and reared in Bay St. Louis. I am married to the former Darlene Ring of Waveland and we have two children. I graduated from Bay Senior High School, and attended Pearl River Junior College for two years. I am a United States Marine Corps Vietnam war veteran."

"I graduated from the Mississippi Law enforcement Academy in Jackson, the academy's investigator course and its narcotics course. I graduated from the University of Mississippi's law enforcement seminar. I graduated from Gulf Regional Planning's law enforcement course and I have attended various in-training law enforcement schools."

Dobson: "I was born in Westwego, La. and reared in a rural area of Pearl River County. I now live in Bay St. Louis. I am a graduate of Carriere High School. I attended Louisiana State University for two years."

"I served five years in the United States Air Force. I served as District Four constable from 1966-1971. I was District Two Justice Court judge from 1972-1975 and began serving as District Four Justice Court judge in 1975, which is the position I presently hold."

What would you like to tell the public? Peterson: "I want to remind everyone to vote. Get out and express your views. When I am elected I will continue to enforce the law to the best of my ability as I have done in the past."

Dobson: "Hancock County's needs in law enforcement are growing. We need professional people to operate it in a manner in which no partiality will be shown to any individual or group. Law enforcement is everyone's business. When I am elected, Hancock County will have a safer and better community to

Stamps ending malnutrition among nation's rural poor

Legislation signed by President Carter will enable USDA to continue food stamp operations in September without closing the program down or reducing benefits. Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland reports.

The legislation also includes several administration proposals to further reduce error and fraud in the program, along with special provisions to increase benefits for the elderly and disabled with high medical or shelter costs.

The new law authorizes an additional $20 million for food stamps in fiscal year 1979. The U.S. Department of Agriculture expects that up to $500 million of this amount will be needed to avoid closing the program entirely or reducing benefits in September, the last month of the fiscal year.

Action to cut benefits because of a funding shortfall would be unprecedented in the history of the 15-year-old program.

Bergland said the additional funds are needed primarily because an unanticipated increase in food prices, to which food stamp benefits are indexed, has pushed program costs above the ceiling on spending contained in the 1977 Food Stamp Act.

When the spending ceiling was enacted, food inflation was projected at between three and four percent a year. But, in the two years since, food prices have risen nearly 20 percent.

To a lesser extent, increases in food stamp participation also have risen program costs. The program

To a lesser extent, increases in food stamp participation also have raised program costs. The program has recently undergone sweeping reforms. Administration proposals enacted by Congress have tightened and simplified program rules, imposed tough penalties for fraud and reduced or terminated benefits for higher income households.

At the same time, the administration's proposal to eliminate the requirement that households buy their food stamps has brought into the program several million new participants who had previously been eligible for food stamps, but had simply been unable to afford them.

Many of these persons are the elderly and rural poor, whose participation rate has historically been very low.

Because they have entered the program at a faster rate and are poorer than predicted, they have received larger benefits for more months of the fiscal year.

Observing that over half of all food stamp households have gross annual incomes below $3,600 and that benefits average only 33 cents per person per meal, Bergland said that the cutting benefits "because the program is reaching larger numbers of the poorest households and because food prices have risen so high is not sound policy."

"While this administration is committed to controlling federal expenditures, we will do so within a budget of compassion which recognized the fundamental importance of food assistance to our nation's poorest families," he stated.

As evidence of the food stamp program's importance, Bergland cited a recent Field Foundation study in which teams of doctors revisited poverty stricken areas they had visited 10 years earlier.

Where they had previously found severe hunger and malnutrition, they now found strikingly fewer grossly malnourished people.

The doctors reported that it is the food stamp program that is "making the crucial difference in improving the quality of the lives of many poor people."

Pledging his support for the program, Bergland called upon Congress to lift the spending cap for future fiscal years and to provide the funding that will be needed to avoid cutting benefits in fiscal years 1980 and 1981.

He also asked Congress to enact pending administration proposals for further error reduction and program savings.

The provisions signed into law give the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the states the authority to require social security numbers of members of participating households and give states access to social security wage records and unemployment compensation records.

Overall, Keating wedding celebrated at St. Clare

Miss Linda Ann Overall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Overall Sr. of Bay St. Louis, became the bride of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Keating of Waveland Saturday afternoon, July 28, at a Nuptial Mass in St. Clare Catholic Church, Waveland.

Rev. Magr. John Scanlon, pastor, performed the double ring ceremony before an altar flanked by candelabra decorated with flowers and ribbon streamers. A program of nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Mildred Mean, organist, and Louis Burghard, vocalist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal organza gown fashioned with a ruffled V-neckline with English net insert, capped with a cameo lace medallion, ring collar and full bishop sleeves. Layered ruffles trimmed the hemline of the bouffant skirt. Her fingertip veil, bordered with lace, veiled her face. She carried a nosegay of white and yellow silk roses, apple blossoms, baby's breath and lily of the valley interspersed with ribbon streamers.

Peggy Overall, Biloxi, attended the sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Dottie Overall, Bay St. Louis, sister-in-law of the bride; Cheri Stewart, Prentiss, Miss.; and Carrie Magee, Columbia, Miss.

They wore pale yellow floral print gowns fashioned with blouson bodices, butterfly sleeves and A-line skirts tied at the waist with green satin sashes. They wore rose hairpieces and carried nosegays of yellow and white roses, forget-me-nots and baby's breath with yellow ribbon streamers.

Robert Shubert, Bay St. Louis, served the groom as best man. Groomsmen were Warren Keating, brother of the groom; William Overall Jr., brother of the bride and Phil Fall, La. Place, La. David Oglebee, Hattiesburg, Miss., served as usher.

The mother of the bride received guests wearing an aqua street length sheath dress with a long-sleeve jacket and a corsage of white roses. The mother of the groom chose a chiffonette print dress and a camellia corsage.

The bride's chosen colors, yellow and white, decorated the National Guard Armory, Waveland, for the reception following the ceremony.

Baskets of white gladioli, yellow and white daisies and palms formed the setting for the bride's table which held a three tier cake trimmed with yellow and white roses.

Mary Trudell presided at the guest register.

For this wedding trip to Pensacola, Fla., the bride wore a rose pink dress with white accessories and a corsage of white sweetheart roses and carnations.

The couple will reside in Gulfport.

Forestry body proposes local advisory groups

State Forester Jack Holman has announced a new State Forestry Commission policy to form Forestry Advisory Councils in each of the State's 82 counties.

The unpaid advisory group in Hancock County will work closely with Forestry Commission Forester Rand Rudrich to define and help answer local forestry needs.

Appointment of local council members will be made by the Area Foresters. Members will serve two years terms. "We feel like formation of these grassroots advisory groups is going to help us do our job better through closer communication with landowners and community leaders who have a keen interest in forestry," said Holman.

Each County Advisory Group will meet at least quarterly to exchange information, ideas, discuss local forestry needs and plan ways to more effectively meet those needs.

VA pension changes advantage to some

A recent increase of nearly 10 percent in some Veterans Administration pension rates may prompt some veterans to take another look at the "improved" VA pension plan passed last year by Congress, Hancock County Veterans Service Officer Mike Ladner noted last week.

Ladner said the rate increases in Social Security payments. The latter were raised 9.9 percent as of June 1, 1979.

Nearly 432,000 veterans have asked the VA to switch their pensions to the "improved" plan.

And Ladner reminded eligible veterans who haven't made up their minds whether to "stay put" or switch that they have until October 1 to qualify for retroactive benefits.

The improved plan offers substantially higher pension rates than the old program, but changes in some income counted under the new plan may make it advisable for certain veterans to remain under their current plan.

In establishing the improved pension plan, Congress stipulated that veterans may switch to it at any time, but must do so before October 1 if they wish the higher rates to provide to take effect retroactively to January 1, 1979.

VA pensions are based on income and go to eligible wartime veterans who permanently and totally disabled from causes not traceable to their service, and who are in financial need.

Pensions are also paid to certain needy survivors of wartime veterans.

Under the new pension rates, a single veteran may receive a maximum pension of $3,902 a year, up from $3,504.

Because certain income that is ignored under the old plan is counted in computing the improved plan, Warnock said some veterans will be better off not to switch plans.

In cases where it is not to the veteran's advantage to elect the new program, VA has been advising them to remain under the old pension program.

SOME PLANTS HARMFUL

Feeding the American preoccupation with new, exciting and unknown ways of getting cancer has created an unbelievable extravaganza of news matter concerning various chemical and food substances.

Meanwhile, far less attention has been given to learning the known and proven dangers of many common poisonous plants.

Annually some 12,000 children in the United States in both town and country make themselves ill from ingestion of toxic plants while frequently the parents had no idea the plants were harmful.

Author John Kingsbury in his book Poisonous Plants of the States and Canada states that there are more than 700 species of plants that are known to have caused death or illness.

Many of these abound in Mississippi and are a menace unless their toxicity is known and respected.

In this column we shall first look at a few in the yard—then the field. The castor bean plant often is grown in southern landscaping for its ornamental value as a large border or screening plant.

The seeds, sold in any garden store, contain the powerful blood poison ricin that could kill a child or an adult. This plant further is grown for oil and its press cake or foliage likewise can be fatal.

From two to four seeds may kill humans. The seeds, sold in any garden store, contain the powerful blood poison ricin that could kill a child or an adult. This plant further is grown for oil and its press cake or foliage likewise can be fatal.

From two to four seeds may kill humans. The seeds, sold in any garden store, contain the powerful blood poison ricin that could kill a child or an adult. This plant further is grown for oil and its press cake or foliage likewise can be fatal.

Children often play with them, and jewelry makers sometimes string them into beads.

Biting or sucking on tree twigs indiscriminately could be fatal for a child as twigs of cherry trees release cyanide when eaten and the leaves of peach trees contain hydrocyanic acid—one of the five most dangerous poisons known.

Even the vegetable garden is not off limits for poisonous plants. The foliage of potatoes and tomatoes contain alkaloid poisons that can, if swallowed, create heinous disorders and stomach upset.

But the most dangerous plant in the vegetable garden is rhubarb. Its stalk is commonly used in baking and cooking, and makes delicious tart, wholesome food.

Yet the leaf blade contains oxalic acid which crystallizes in the kidneys and causes severe damage if a number of leaves are eaten.

Mistletoe berries commonly used as Christmas decorations are deadly if eaten particularly by children.

A field, especially in and around hog lots, the Jimsonweed is an attractive bushy plant that emits a strong odor when crushed. This weed is very poisonous.

Oleander bushes are common southern ornamental shrubs and highly poisonous. People have died after eating oleander stems and cooked over an open fire.

Morning glory seeds can have an effect similar to that of Jimsonweed, and often these grow within the bounds of children at play in their yard.

SEAMAN D. R. HALL
Navy Seaman Recruit David R. Hall, son of Adolph R. and Mary K. Hall of Kiln, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego.

During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 65 basic occupational fields.

Included in his studies were seamanship, closer-order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in physical education and hygiene.

A 1979 graduate of Hancock North Central High School, Hall joined the Navy in June 1978.

School lunch departments report free and reduced price guidelines

Under federal guidelines, two public schools in Hancock County have announced their policies for free and reduced price lunches to be served this year under the National School Lunch Program.

Local school officials have adopted the following family size income criteria for determining eligibility:

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown in the attached scale are eligible for free or reduced price lunches.

In addition, families not meeting these criteria but with other unusual expenses due to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 percent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

Application forms are being sent to all homes in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility.

Applications may be submitted at any time during the year.

To discourage the possibility of misrepresentation, the application forms contain a statement above the space for a signature certifying that all information furnished in the application is true and correct.

An additional statement is added to warn that the application is being made in connection with the receipt of Federal funds, that school officials may, for cause, verify the information in the application, and that deliberate misrepresentation of information may subject the applicant to prosecution under Federal criminal statutes.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such lunches, they should contact the school.

Under the provisions of the policy, the attendance center principal will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis.

If he wishes to make a formal appeal, he may make a request either orally or in writing to the respective superintendent or principal for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure.

If a family member becomes unemployed or if the family size changes, the family should contact the school to file a new application.

Such changes may make the children of the family eligible for reduced price lunches, or for additional benefits such as free lunches if the family income falls at or below the levels shown on the scale.

In this operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, or national origin.

Each school and office of superintendents have a copy of the complete policy which may be reviewed by any interested party.

Hancock County schools and systems participating in the school lunch and commodity programs include Hancock County School District, Terrell Randolph, superintendent; Bay St. Louis Public School District, J. D. McCulloch, superintendent; Bay St. Louis Catholic School, Sister Mary Celeste Seymour, principal; St. Clare Elementary School, Sister Rose Marion, MSBT, principal; Mary Hyacinth, OP, principal.

By S. GRADY THIGPEN

Thigpen quotes from Bob Taylor's 'Sermon To Boys'

Back when I first began to read the papers - more than 50 years ago - the name of Bob Taylor was much in the news. He was a famous, witty, speaker, and an inspirational speaker.

Born and raised on a farm in the mountains of east Tennessee, he was a self-educated, and a self-made man. He was so popular in his native state of Tennessee that he was elected governor of that great state.

Some where around 1900 he wrote a SERMON TO BOYS. I think it is worth quoting: "My Dear Chums: The happiest period of human life is youth; and the happiest specimen of youth is a big, healthy, awkward, watery jointed, frolicking boy, with his heart full of dreams, and his pockets full of apples and things."

He is a bouncing laugh and a bounding yell. He is the beloved hand of every mother's heart and the delightful outlaw of every daddy's home.

What cares he for the painted walls and garlanded rooms; and velvet rugs, and pictured tapestry, and pastels, and water colors and crayons in frames of gilt and gold?

What cares he for polished floors and stairs of mahogany?

What cares he for all the chandeliers that shine, so he has liberty to romp on the green carpets of the meadows and the hills, under heaven's chandelier and a place to sleep in the lumber room among the cobwebs and the old rusty trunks, where his rest is as sweet as though he were pillowed on the couch of a king, with silken curtains drawn about him?

What cares he for champagne and cherry, if he can lie down and drink from the bubbling spring and listen to the wild melody of nature's songs that sparkle in his soul?

What cares he for "consumption," so he can get plenty of soup?

What cares he for "sirlin," so he has plenty of beef to eat? What cares he for "roast prairie chicken," so he gets chicken?

What cares he for "de la's," and the "a la's" and "au jus" of the up-to-date menu?

They are vanity and vexation of spirit to him; in comparison with a good old-fashioned, well-cooked, big-dished home dinner, steaming like an engine, and tempting his appetite with the mingling aromas of boiled cabbage and stewed turnips and mashed potatoes and smoking biscuit and corn dodgers nodding behind the golden-battlements of fresh country butter, with big pitchers sweating on the outside of cold buttermilk, and pumpkin pies laughing all over the table.

If I had to find a real boy, I do not search for him in the parlor, but in the pantry, I do not expect to find him in the drawing-room, but in the dining room.

He does not lurk in the library, but in the back yard with his billygoats or in the fields shooting and shouting in the glorious company of his faithful dogs.

The reason is that a boy loves his stomach better than poems and pictures; he loves nature better than art.

The truth is, he is nature's child; and the child loves to play close to the warm throbbing heart of its mother.

Nature furnishes him with mud puddles to wade in, and stones to throw and birds to throw at, and hills to coast on, and streams to fish in, and sunshine to warm in, and shade to cool in, and fruits and berries of every kind to eat, and "Molly Cottontails" to hunt, and a thousand other joys that bless his life.

But soon the hour comes when nature must wean her boy, and lead him out of her nursery into the sweet garden of fancy and the green fields of poetry, which lie on the frontier of cold facts - the boardland of reality.

To prepare him for his future career, she first touches his vocal cords and changes his voice from the tone of the life to the mellifluous tones of the bass violin, and puts a little hair on his upper lip and whispers one word in his heart, which, in the twinkling of an eye, changes his dreams and his destiny. That word is "love."

What a word of beauty it unfolds to him!

And now sudden is his transposition from the mud puddle to the bath tub; from the "Molly Cottontails" to the "Molly curlicues," from the frolics in the haymow to the meditations among the butter cups and clover blossoms, from yells to love songs, from unrestrained laughter to sickly smiles, from text books to novels, from novels to the opera, from the opera to strolls in the moonlight, and from the moonlight to the lamplight in the parlor where he sits behind closed doors in executive session and holds her hand for an hour and never says a word!

The world is a bouquet of flowers to the boy whose heart is full of love. When I was a gay country boy in my jeans and in my teens, I was as green as the green grass, and as innocent as Mary's little lamb.

I had two cronies who were equally as green as I, and we had a right to be green.

The fields in which we played together were green, the trees that shaded us were green, and the woodlands around us were green, and we were all very fond of turnip greens.

But we had seen the sunshine love the green fields into harvests of gold, and kiss the green mountains until they had turned and pouted their crimson lips to be kissed again, and in our jeans, amid our greens, we sighed for love and kisses.

The sweethearts of our childhood like little birds, had long since flown from the mountains to live in a neighboring city, and word came that they still remembered us, and loved us, and wished that we might come.

So with butter nut suits and the squeaking boots and our little wool hats with brims pushed up in front, we cooed the cars and soon we were primping and blacking our boots and perching in the hotel within five squares of the fountained and powdered enemy.

At length an immense hall's eye watch in the trembling hand of one of my comrades announced that the time for action had arrived, and we recognized the crowded streets, "wondering, tearing, doubting, dreaming dreams no mortal ever dared to dream before."

Far out in the country from whence we had come there was no such thing as a door bell, and suddenly there was a tapping at of some one loudly rapping, rapping hard upon the door, and the "silen, sad, uncertain rustling" of our sweethearts skirts within "thrilled us with fantastic terrors," we had never felt before.

Our hearts leaped to our throats when the heavy paneled oak door swung back on noiseless hinges and the "century reeled" when we paused in the hall under the brilliant chandelier, where we put into execution our studied and practiced bows.

Then there was a rush of red hot blood flooding our faces making it more awkward than ever to regain equilibrium when the door opened and in stepped three elegantly dressed young gentlemen, who were evidently the beaux of our erstwhile sweethearts.

The city swell always has a supreme contempt for a country boy, especially in the game of love.

These young men laughed in our faces when we again put into execution our studied and practiced bows, and they gracefully sat down by the girls and began to pour out great sluices of nonsense.

They were kind enough, however to fire a few questions at us to which we replied on monosyllables and with more perspiration which ran down our cheeks like rain, until the paper collar of one of my cronies came in two; and he instantly sprang to his feet and broke for the door, closely followed by his two demoralized and badly routed comrades, and amid the protestations and appeals of the young ladies to remain longer, we made a rush for the street and vanished for evermore.

The years rolled on and we all found congenial spirits closer home, who made our hearts Eden and our firesides Paradise.

One of my cronies became a splendid business man, and private secretary to the Governor of a great State, and the other became a judge, and the city swells who laughed in the faces of the innocent country lads were long since lost in the scuffle and have never been heard of since among those who have succeeded in the world.

I leave you to read the moral of this story between the lines. I would not say aught to discourage the boys who dwell in the towns and cities for they have ten thousand advantages which country boys never dream of.

The cities and towns are the emporiums of art and science, and the great school of polytechnic and mechanical training, but the country is the nursery of poems and statesmen.

I have seen something of life in both, and my observation has been that the country is the place to raise a boy, where the green hills and the beautiful landscape broadens his views, and where the great mountains point upward toward God.

Yours very truly,
Robert L. Taylor
